

David P. Perkins, M.D. St. Davids, PA Internal Medicine

"Total Access Medical has a superb reputation. Their vision of personalized care is 100% about putting the patient first, truly emphasizing quality care and prevention. My relationships with my patients have been enhanced with the ability to spend more time with each other. We can delve into life's medical and social complexities which results in better and more comprehensive care. I not only look forward to offering this kind of care to my patients but evolving with Total Access Medical as they continue to grow their personal care program to expand to fit patients' needs."

A graduate of Duke University and The Ohio State University College of Medicine, Dr. Perkins came to Philadelphia to do his internship and residency at Thomas Jefferson University. He is Board Certified in Internal Medicine and is on staff at Bryn Mawr, Lankenau, and Paoli hospitals. Dr. Perkins has a strong commitment to preventive medicine, helping patients remain compliant with current medical guidelines in an effort to optimize their health. A member of the American College of Physicians, Dr. Perkins not only brings his years of experience to the TAM network but his extreme passion and commitment to providing his patients high quality care.

Education:

Duke University

B.S. Psychology, Cum Laude, 1980

University of Florida

Post Baccalaureate Program, 1982

Medical School:

The Ohio State University

College of Medicine, M.D., 1987

Post Graduate Training:

Internship:

Thomas Jefferson University, 1988

Residency:

Thomas Jefferson University

Internal Medicine, 1990

Board Certification:

American Board of Internal Medicine;

Re-certified in 2004

Diplomat of National Board of Medical Examiners

Professional Societies:

American College of Physicians

American Society of Internal Medicine